

What Is Classical Acupuncture?

Classical Acupuncture is a system of treating illness and maintaining health that has been practiced for over 3,000 years. It has as its' origin the culture of Ancient China, wherein close observation of the laws of Nature was considered to be the basis for medical science. The Chinese Medical Classics represent a system wherein health is achieved through creating balance in the individual, through the integration of Body, Mind and Spirit.

The fundamental “essence” of each individual is represented by the flow and quantity of “Qi” (pronounced “chee”). It is similar to the concept in the West of Vital Energy. This is a non-substantial material that flows in pathways, called meridians, in a closed system, passing through and nourishing all of the organ systems, tissues, bone, etc. It is considered to be the motive force behind the functioning of the physical body (respiration, blood flow, autonomic nervous response, etc.), as well as the ability to experience emotions, and even the ability to follow one’s path in life.

The individual is a complex organism where every aspect of function is interrelated. For example, in order for the liver to function properly, so must the kidney, lungs and spleen. Any energetic malfunction affecting one organ system, will ultimately affect all of the others. Illness arises as a result of some blockage or interference in the natural flow of Qi. Any and all symptoms which arise are primarily red flags indicating that something has interfered with the smooth flow of Qi from one system to the next - thus disturbing the balance between all of the physical systems of the body, and ultimately having the potential to affect all aspects of one's being, on a physical, mental and emotional level.

Furthermore, since patients are viewed as highly individual beings, made up of their own particular energetic pattern (like a thumbprint), successful treatment can only be achieved after arriving at a diagnosis that is specific to that individual. This would not only include consideration of the particular symptoms with which that person presented themselves, but also an identification of their constitutional energetic pattern and how that pattern has been compromised to create energetic imbalance.

In order to heal the presenting symptoms, the practitioner must treat the imbalance that caused the symptoms. Treating the symptom by itself would ultimately either recreate the original symptom, or force the imbalance to manifest as another symptom elsewhere. A symptom in the body, therefore, is like the red light, which comes on when one’s car needs some maintenance. It would be futile to address the red light by disconnecting its wires, rather than opening the hood and discovering the cause of the problem. Since every individual has a different energetic make up, no two persons presenting with the same symptom are necessarily treated in the same way.

Classical Acupuncture theory is based on certain laws of nature that represent the cyclic movement of energy. (e.g. daily biorhythms). Yin and Yang represents the movement from extreme to opposite and the Five Elements metaphor has association with, in one of its applications, the seasons of the year. Our ability as individuals to follow our own natural cycles and rhythms; rest when tired, eat when hungry, etc., allows us to maintain internal balance and health.

What Can I Expect With Treatment?

The acupuncture practitioner makes a detailed analysis of information presented by the patient at the initial consultation, as well as utilizing skills of observation and physical examination, to determine the overall state of health. Constitutional strengths and weaknesses are also assessed. Because of the comprehensive nature of this examination the first session can take between 1½ hours and 2 hours.

Treatment begins on the second visit using acupuncture (the insertion of very fine needles in various points along the energy meridians). The needles are used to clear energetic blockages, redirect energy, tonify or disperse energy and to generally re-establish harmony between all of the organ systems.

Moxibustion can also be used in treatment. This represents burning an herb (artemesia latiflora vulgaris) on an acupuncture point to warm and enhance the effectiveness of the needle.

Pulse diagnosis is used to assess the quality and quantity of energy passing through each of the organ systems. There are 12 pulses (6 on each wrist) and the pulse is “read” several times during each treatment to determine the effectiveness of each aspect of treatment.

Treatment consists of clearing energetic blockages and supporting the balance and constitution of the individual, thus working to eliminate the cause of the presenting symptoms. Therefore each treatment is like building a foundation for health. The patient is usually treated once per week for the first 5 to 6 weeks; then as they begin to feel improvement and as the energetic pulses become more balanced and stable, treatment is then spaced out gradually, allowing the persons own energetic dynamic to recreate and maintain harmony. The effectiveness of treatment and consequently the number of treatments required varies with the individual.

How Acupuncture Can Help You

Acupuncture has been demonstrated as effective with a broad variety of presenting problems, including general fatigue, backache, sleeplessness, headaches, depression, anxiety, overeating, addiction to cigarettes and alcohol, pre-menstrual tension, and many others. People will often describe feeling "out of balance" or "not quite right, not themselves".

Classical Acupuncture revitalizes the Body, Mind and Emotional balance, and was also used historically in ancient China as preventive health care.

People receiving acupuncture may initially report feeling better in themselves before they begin to notice symptoms recede. They may sleep better, and perhaps get on better with partners, family members, friends and colleagues. They often report they have more overall vitality. Some people find that they are able to work more efficiently and effectively.

It is not always necessary to have a specific symptom to experience some benefit from acupuncture treatment. Very often the first signs of energy imbalance are little discomforts which we learn to ignore (and which often do not reveal any specific cause on medical tests), such as poor, unrefreshing sleep, or general fatigue or aches or pains

How Does Classical Acupuncture Differ From Other Types Of Acupuncture?

Classical Acupuncture is the system of Chinese Medicine that follows the principles as set forth in the Chinese Classic of Internal Medicine, the Ling Shu and the Su Wen. It incorporates the concept of the inseparability of Body/Mind and Spirit and uses diagnostic and treatment principles which allows the practitioner to effectively treat imbalances on any of those levels. Training in this system is a long process, which extends beyond the 3 years of full time Acupuncture School required for licensing. It is an art which is literally a life-long learning process.

Traditional Chinese Medicine (TCM) is a more current system which was popularized during post-revolutionary times in China. It varies in its approach from Classical Acupuncture. It uses diagnostic methods that identify symptoms according to syndromes without necessarily taking into account the individual constitutional energetics of the patient. For example, several patients presenting with similar symptoms might all receive very similar treatment. Most TCM practitioners also utilize Chinese herbs to supplement their treatments. The balance of Body, Mind and Spirit are not necessarily fundamental to this system.

Both of the above systems are comprehensive and require at least 3 years of full-time study at an accredited Acupuncture College. In addition, licensing requires successful completion of a national competency exam given by the National Commission for the Certification of Acupuncture and Oriental Medicine. In the State of North Carolina, Medical Doctors and Chiropractors are outside of the jurisdiction of the Acupuncture Licensing Board, and therefore may practice acupuncture without or with very minimal training.

Ian Barbara Florian
M.Ac.(US), M.Ac.(UK), L.Ac.(NC),
Dipl.Ac.(NCCAOM), MBAcC
Ph.D (Holistic Nutrition)

Ian Florian has been practicing Classical Acupuncture since 1984. She received a B.A. in Asian Culture/Pre-Med from Mills College (Oakland, California) in 1976, studied Shiatsu Therapeutic Massage, then completed her initial training in Acupuncture at the Traditional Acupuncture Institute in Columbia, Maryland (M.Ac.); and also holds two advanced degrees in Acupuncture from the College of Traditional Acupuncture (UK), representing five years of additional clinical training. She holds a Ph.D in Holistic Nutrition, has received training in Zero Balancing and Reiki and has special interest in Chinese therapeutic exercise.

In addition to continuous private practice since 1984, Ian studied and taught Five Element Acupuncture at The College of Traditional Acupuncture (CTA) with J. R. Worsley. During her time as a CTA teaching faculty member, (1987 – 1995), she also served as one of the Directors of Studies, Clinical Supervisor, and as a member of the Advisory Board for the College as well as serving on committees setting curriculum guidelines toward accreditation in the UK. She served on the teaching faculty of the Academy for Five Element Acupuncture (Fla.), and has taught at the Traditional Acupuncture Institute in Md. (now TaiSophia). Ian Florian is co-founder of Harmony Gate, an acupuncture clinic and NCCAOM approved provider of continuing education for acupuncture practitioners.

We love our work and are very happy to discuss any questions that you may have about acupuncture or your treatments. Our goal is to help you participate in your own healing process and we are here to assist as much as possible.

Acupuncture Clinic Policy:

Acupuncture Fees:

Initial Consultation    $140
Treatments                $100

Payment is due at time of treatment.

Cancelled Appointments: Because of the amount of preparation time involved in acupuncture treatments and also the limited availability of appointment slots, we must ask that we be given 24 hours notice of changed or canceled appointments.
